Wheel of Pythagoras Answer Sheet .....	62

Introduction

This wheel of fortune is hundreds of years old, and may be a descendant of even-earlier such divination systems. It has been published under a variety of aliases such as the Sphere of Pythagoras, the Wheel of Life and Death, of Democritus, of Petosiris, of Apuleius, and other variations on that theme over the centuries. It has also been published under the more lengthy and factual name, ‘The Thirty Questions and Nine Hundred Answers of Pythagoras’ for that name essentially describes the nature of this divination tool—thirty, pre-set, multi-purpose questions, with thirty possible answers to each question, totaling nine hundred answers. The ‘wheel’ included in this system really comprises just one step in the forecasting process, so ‘the Thirty Questions and Nine Hundred Answers’ name actually makes more sense.

This divination system bears a marked resemblance in its format to ‘Napoleon’s Book of Fate’ which naturally brings up speculations about a possible connection between the two. There is a key difference: with Napoleon’s Book of Fate, the inquirer is drawing a figure or series of lines in order to derive their fortune. This ‘Wheel of Pythagoras’ requires the inquirer to complete an arithmetical problem whose factors are derived from environmental circumstances. These factors are numerical values assigned things such as the first initial of the inquirer’s name, the day of the week on which they’re asking, the ruling planet of that day, and in at least one version of this divination system, the day of the moon’s age on which they are asking the question. But if approached in a spirit of sincerity and an open desire to have an answer to your question, this ‘Wheel of Pythagoras’ system will work.

How to Consult this Oracle

I have seen two different methods by which an answer is derived, using this system. Method one below comes from The Manual of Cartomancy by Grand Orient:

COMPUTATIONAL METHOD ONE:

1. Look over the list of questions on page 6 and identify the question to which you most desire an answer.
2. Turn to the Wheel of Destiny on page 7. Find the first letter of your first/given name, and there you will see a number-value assigned to it. Write that number-value down on a piece of paper.
3. Under this first number, write the day of the month on which you were born.
4. Turn to the Table of Number Values on page 9. Find the day of the week on which you are asking the question you selected. You will see there is a number value assigned to that day. Write that number under the previous two.
5. Look at the Planetary ruler table on the same page, and find the planet which holds rulership over that day of the week. It will be the box immediately below the day in question. You will see there is a number value assigned to that planet. Write that number under the previous three.
6. Add these four numbers together, then divide the result by 30. The end product is your answer number. Turn to the Answer Key on pages 10 through 13. Find the number of the question you asked down the first column on the left side of the page, and then your answer number in the horizontal bar at the top of the page. Drawing a straight line with your fingers from the left and downward. The box where the two lines intersect contains the letter of the chart in which you will be looking for your answer. The astrological symbol above the answer number at the top of the page is the symbol key which indicates your particular answer in that chart.

COMPUTATIONAL METHOD TWO:

This method was outlined on pages 105-107 of The Cunning Man's Handbook by Jim Baker:

1. Turn to the number chart on page 8 and choose a number at random. If you like, you may cut the chart up into cards, place them face down, swirl them around and choose a card at random, or you can place the whole chart on a lazy-susan, give it a spin-and-point and arrive at a number that way. The key thing is, the random number chosen should be any number from one to thirty. When you have a random number chosen, write it down.
2. Turn to the Wheel of Destiny on page 7. Find the letter of your first/given name, and there you will see a number-value assigned to it. Write that number under the first number you wrote down.
3. Turn to the Table of Number Values on page 9. Find the number value assigned to the day of the week on which you're asking the question, and write it down under the previous two.
4. Find the number value assigned to the planet ruling the day of the week on which you're asking the question. It will be the box immediately below the day of the week. Write that number under the previous three.
5. Find the day of the moon's age. If you have a calendar which shows the phases of the moon, you may be able to count manually, or else consult an almanac, ephemeris, or Internet website which will supply this information. When you have the date of the moon's age, write that number down under the previous four.
6. Add these five numbers up, then divide by 30. Turn to the Answer Key pages and find the number of the question you asked in the left-hand vertical column, find the answer number your arithmetical problem yielded in the top horizontal bar of the Answer Key. Tracing a straight line left and down from the two, the box where they intersect will contain the identifying letter of the chart where you'll find your answer. The astrological symbol above the answer number from your problem will indicate the specific identifying symbol for your answer within that particular chart.

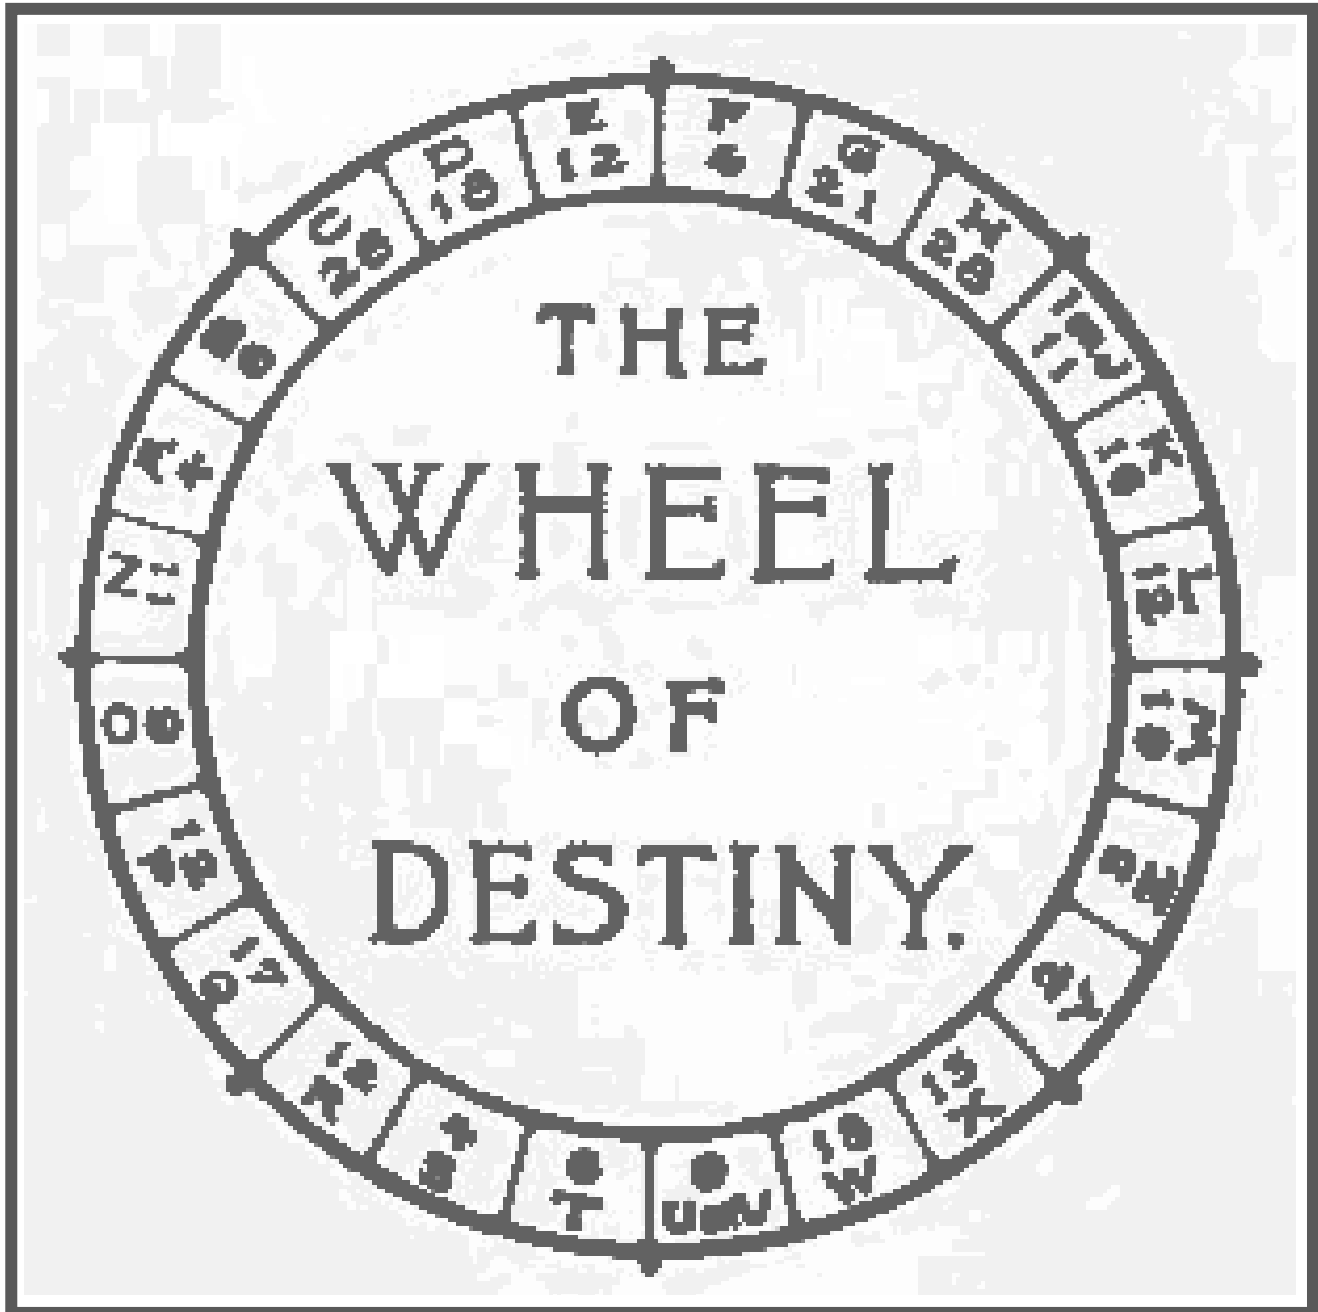

You are encouraged to experiment with both of these computational methods for arriving at an answer to your question, for you may find that one of these two methods is the one which most-reliably gives you an accurate answer. If you feel intuitively-drawn to one of these arithmetical formulas over the other, then trust that your intuition knows best. You may find that with some questions, both methods work equally well.

The Thirty Life-Questions of Pythagoras

1. Will I be fortunate or unfortunate in this world?
2. What epochs of my life will prove to be the richest in fortune?
3. Will I attain my heart's desire?
4. What are the initials of the unknown person's name, about whom I seek intelligence?
5. Will the sick person recover or have a relapse?
6. Am I born to live a long or a short life?
7. What is my ruling planet or constellation, and my consequent destiny?
8. Will a promise made be fulfilled?
9. Will I enjoy gain where I now live, or should I move to a new place?
10. Is my friend trustworthy and true?
11. Will my present ill-fortune turn to good fortune any time soon?
12. What kind of weather will there be on the occasion which I have in mind?
13. Will the particular day I'm thinking of prove to be a fortunate day?
14. What day of the week or month will be of the most importance to me?
15. What will be my fortune in marriage?
16. What can you tell me about lost or stolen goods?
17. Will I gain or lose in this law-suit?
18. What will be lady's (or gentleman's) fortune in marriage?
19. Will I be fortunate in the family I am destined to have?
20. Is my absent friend happy, or in trouble?
21. If I bet or play, will I lose or win?
22. Do I have more friends than enemies?
23. To what part of the World should I travel?
24. Will there be a change in my life this year?
25. Is it good for me to travel or voyage?
26. What does Fortune have in store for me over the next seven years?
27. Will the ship (or shipment) arrive safely, or be lost?
28. In what calling or business will I best prosper?
29. Will the business speculation which I propose to invest in prove fortunate?
30. Who is to win in the coming battle?

The Wheel of Destiny

For use with Computational Methods One and Two. Find the first letter of your first or given name in the wheel below, and write down the number which accompanies it.

The Table of Random-Chance Numbers

A

	This sign indicates that the asker will be fortunate in their earthly life, starting one year from this day. He will have a fair habitation, and will enjoy the luxuries wealth brings.
	Doubtless you are the favourite of the planet Mars, and you will conquer those who oppose you.
	Propitious signs surround you. One sign, however, indicates a few months' delay. Be cautious.
	The watery signs influence this particular part of your life. If you would prosper, choose the sea, or some situation dealing in fish, oils, or liquids of any sort.
	The vessel has been driven by a tempest, and deep waters have threatened her; but she is safe.
	You will be invited to a feast, a banquet, or a wedding. Expect three mischances and also a funeral (likely not a near-relative), a perilous journey and a jovial gift.
	Mark this well! By land, there is safety. Do not imperil yourself by travelling on water. Avoid travelling when the Moon is past its full phase.
	A move—probably sudden and unexpected. Plenty of employment, but some of it tedious. Here, too, is indicated the help of a kind friend.
	Travel eastward from the place of your birth, or from the place where you now are. Otherwise, do not go at all. Do not journey westward.
	Fortune is yours already; what more would you have? Still, your designs are, even now, doubtful.
	Six of them favor you, and four are against you. Therefore, your friends preponderate.
	The absent person has recently changed residence. Evil stars have prevailed for them lately. News will reach you shortly.
	This portends a small family. Two fortunate children are allotted you.
	A slow and tiresome courtship, but a quick marriage to one of tall stature, erect and free in carriage, portly and handsome in appearance. One who is also fortunate.
	The longer purse will belong to your enemy, but if you can keep false witnesses away, then fear not.
	Look carefully. A woman is concerned in the matter, if it's theft. If it's lost, search the apartments where females sleep.
	The inquirer will marry a prudent and clever lady, a stranger from the west, dark-featured, handsome, and one whom they can love.
	Sunday will be the day of your greatest success and happiness. A Friday will prove to be the most sorrowful day of your life.
	Some of the planets are now frivolous, and in the mood to be oppositional; some are decidedly evil. Be on your guard.
	A dry, pleasant season, and fertile. If you ask of a day only, it will be wet. If you ask of a month, it will be pleasant.

	There is a change in the future. Within three months, you will perceive it. In three years, there will be a still-greater change.
	Beware of red-haired people. The planets warn you against deceit, hate and cunning.
	Were you to move at present, it would only increase the evils now around you. Beware of changing your place of residence in under four months' time.
	This speaks of some secret snare or artifice, which is designed specifically to mislead you. Fate is opposed to your wishes.
	You are born under Saturn, and the sign is Capricorn. Until your thirty-third year, you may expect little luck. The middle of life, from thirty-three to fifty-one is full of care. After that period, there is happiness.
	It would be better for you not to inquire any further about this matter. For before you reach your forty-second year, perils must be withstood. These perils, you should bear with patience until then.
	There are ominous signs of a mysterious relapse. By all means, change the physician if you so-desire. Avoid the danger if you possibly can, by keeping the sick-room free of drafts, except at the top of the windows.
	The name which you seek is of some length, in terms of syllables. It begins with an H or an I, and is a not-commonly-used name.
	Unless manifold cares are taken, some delay will be caused; perhaps even a dilemma will emerge. One remarkable difficulty will take place.
	It is foretold that your fate will be evil at twenty-two, and perilous at thirty. Temperance and fortitude will assist you in preserving your life at those times.

B

	Your youth is fraught with many vicissitudes, and some calamities and disasters. There will be three narrow-escapes, and three years of fickle fortune, but then prosperity will arrive.
	The planets indicate that you are destined for a fate replete with vicissitudes and changes.
	The taller of the two will overcome the shorter, either personally or by proxy; and the weaker will afterwards become the chosen-friend of his conqueror.
	This foretells, in the present instance, happy success.
	Deal in merchandise, or the produce of the earth, and you will become rich.
	The ship is now in-harbor or at least, free from the dangers portended in the earlier part of the voyage.
	Five long and tedious journeys are allotted to you, three of which will be on water. Twice, you will attend funerals.
	Beware of short, thick-set people with reddish and coarse hair, and generally marked with scars on the face. This is a sign of deceit and danger. Defer your intentions for a period of nine weeks, if you would have even a fair chance of success.
	A tall, fair-featured person with yellow or brown hair, in high life, will before-long become your bosom-friend.

	In the south and south-east, in a hilly country, your fortune lies. Do not live by the water's side, but on the hills, near the houses of the well-to-do, high-born, or rich people.
	The planetary bearings are moderately-fortunate. But there is one person who will strive against you, of whom you should beware; for he will be an enemy, presenting himself in the guise of a friend.
	The star of your history is now obscured. For a season of three months, your fate is crossed and untoward.
	He or she has been sick and in trouble, but for a time, his or her tribulations will vanish. Be not uneasy about this person.
	Your children will be at once your joy and your sorrow. One of your boys will become the commander of many. He will bring you joy and wealth.
	Twice, she will wed. One of her choices will be a dark-haired, elderly man. The other will be light-complexioned and now, or until recently, a stranger.
	He who expects to gain shall, in this instance, lose. The present hour is evil, and evil-minded persons will vex you. Try this oracle again tomorrow.
	If the thing is lost only, look for it in high or lofty places, and where books are kept. If it be stolen, then one under fifteen years of age has committed the theft.
	You will love many, deceive some, and will meet your match in marriage after all. (Which serves you right, I might add).
	The third day of the month is evil for you, and Sunday is always unfortunate for you—yet it shall be the most-noted day of your life
	Although some of the planets show good fortune, this day will result in evil. Be discreet and watchful.
	Is it about today or tomorrow you ask? If so, rain is in the air. If of a future period, expect, in summer, thunder; in autumn, hail; in winter, snow; and in spring, gales.
	Doubtless it will. This is the forerunner of wealth, happiness and prosperity for the one being inquired-about.
	Few in number, and rare, are worldly friendships. Yet some real good is near at hand, or is now occurring.
	Don't move until eighty-eight days have passed, then move quickly. It will be the luckiest migration of your life.
	In part it may, but numerous interruptions will happen first.
	You are ruled by the constellation Aries, and the Sun, which is your planet, will shine gloriously on your life. It bodes well for good success in life.
	A spell of sickness is before you, and until this is over, the planets will not address the matter of the length of your life.
	A crisis, yes, two of them, are already past. The stars above now foreshadow good, and encourage you to nurture the sentiment of hope in your heart.
	Do you inquire about a lover? If so, the letter is O. But if it is of an enemy or a thief, then it is N or R, and the name is short.
	Whatever your misgivings may be, the stars speak in favor of good fortune.

C

	Take all due heed that you are not too-ardent in your wishes, for there is a serious mischance at hand, of-which you little think.
	Between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two, your life is vivid in scenery, and fair in prospect, yet nonetheless subject to some evils. Between thirty-five and forty is exceedingly good.
	You have sought answers for that which you had better not ask further particulars of for three months. Otherwise, you may be vexed at the answers.
	Both shall, in a manner, lose. But the rounder in visage is more-favoured than the other, and you will be annoyed thereby.
	Three perils are to cross the adventurer. He will be near to giving up on the project, and success will appear doubtful—at least, that is, for a year to come.
	Your sign speaks of gaining by the rich. Perhaps you will not profit by your own exertions in business. In trading, you will often lose.
	This is a sign of safety, and of news within twenty-nine days. And also, it is a sign of some false-alarms.
	A total change in your business and pursuits, and three accidents: by fire, blows, and bruises. One of the seven years, however, will be the most-fortunate year of your life.
	Begin your journeys on the increase of the moon, and at least seven days before it is full, and on Mondays. By doing so, success will attend you. If you travel this year, expect alarms.
	There will be, both around the time of the Summer Solstice, and at the Winter Solstice. In one other season of the year, there will be a journey taken, or a move.
	Towards the highest ground of the state or county where you now reside. Shun anyplace near the water.
	One will assuredly play false, so be on your guard and don't stake freely. Don't play randomly, or in haste. Some of the signs are very mischievous.
	At present, you've cast an omen of rancor, malice and adversaries, both known and unknown. Remember this, and be cautious
	Your friend is happy; all goes well with them.
	One of your household will be skillful as a doctor, or in war. Another will travel in foreign lands. Generally speaking, you have your desires.
	Disappointed in your first love, you will, for a period of three years, mourn your apparently-evil romantic fate. But be cheerful, for many bright scenes await you in four years' time.
	Either false witnesses will rise up against you, or you will be foiled in your suit for want of testimony on your behalf, so you cannot be too cautious in how you proceed.
	One of the thieves will be overtaken by justice before a year's time has passed, but you will not yourself recover your stolen goods, for the thief who is destined to be caught by the law is out of your life now.

	Your fate is to marry one whom you have never seen. If you are already married, then your fortune is subject to many and annoying changes.
	Tuesday is the most-pernicious day of your life, and the seventh day of every month is the most-fortunate for you.
	Harm will be near; delay your plans for the day you're thinking of, and for at least three weeks.
	If you seek information concerning a particular day, it will be clear and fine. If you seek concerning a certain season, it will be mild and fruitful.
	Who shall doubt it? The planets foreshadow successful and happy changes.
	Though his mind may waver and doubt, he still truly affects you, and his cause is your own. Don't make him angry.
	A well-thought-out move would resolve the problem, but delay the move for twenty-nine days, or you may have reason to fear some evil may follow you.
	If of money, it will scarcely be. But if it is an offer of friendship, it may be. But know this—he promises more than he can deliver.
	The constellation Gemini owns you, and Mercury is your planet. Your destiny is to be famous and renowned in your day and generation.
	There are four, perhaps five, dangerous periods which could possibly cut-short the thread of your life. Temperance, sobriety and watchfulness are life-preservers in your case. Live carefully.
	Even as you're asking the question, the disease is undergoing a change. But in three days comes a crisis—and either good or bad will be the result.
	If you ask to know the initial of your future marital partner, it is S. If you ask concerning a thief, it is P. And in either case, the name is bold-sounding and perhaps uncouth.

D

	If you seek the name of the one with-whom you shall one day be enamoured, it begins with a T, and is several syllables long. If any other name, the letter is L.
	Peaceably and quietly you may not, but after some strife, you may. The omens are not decisive on this point, so don't be too confident.
	There is much trouble in your life, even at the present time. Much has already passed, and more is still to come. But your middle-age, from age thirty-nine to sixty, is fortunate.
	This sign tells of poverty near you, and then a sudden elevation in your fortune.
	The fairer of the two foes loses in the combat. One contender is backed by powerful friends, and the encounter will end in a curious fashion.

	The stars say the right road to fortune is before you—but one enemy will cross your path while you are on it.
	Deal in books, pictures, and music. Success is promised in these areas of endeavor.
	Three perils attend the ship. One by privateers or pirates, one by fire or lightning, and one by storm. She will not escape them all.
	Four times to wear mourning; a faithful friend; trouble caused by a female relation; a desired aid; a journey; a wound; a powerful enemy; and a rich present.
	Begin the journey when the moon is in Capricorn, and you can travel in safety, either on land or water.
	There are three changes: one caused by death, one change of residence, and one change in your family.
	To low and watery places, to the south and southward, to great or large cities, and to small island kingdoms.
	A cross-destiny is yours at this time—if you win now, you will lose in the future.
	You have more friends than foes at present. But a year ago, it was the reverse. The Goddess Fortuna is now in your favor, so use Her for your future benefit. She stays with you for seven years.
	Since the absent one departed, some sudden peril has crossed their path. Three weeks or three months ago, troubles and cares were very-near them, and even now, they're not entirely clear of evils.
	The planet Venus foretells that a female of great beauty will be born in your family. But otherwise, the good fortune of which you ask is to come.
	She will be courted by three good-looking suitors, but in the end, she will wed one of dark visage, with black or hazel eyes. This is a clever person, who is tall and well-proportioned.
	The verdict may be in your favor, but there are few signs of profit in this suit.
	If stolen, it has gone over the water and will never be recovered. If mislaid, look in closets or wardrobes, where water flows, and in wells or sewers.
	To wed one whom you will love lightly, yet prize highly, and at one point in your married life, to enjoy a bountiful share of fortune.
	The most remarkable day in your life will be a Saturday. The 14th of September and the 3rd of July are days of either peculiarly-good or peculiarly-bad fortune for you. Monday is your worst day of the week.
	If you are in earnest about the future when you inquire, then know that in your case, fortune is very favorable to you.
	A cloudy and obscure air. If you're asking about winter, sleet. If about spring, rain. If about autumn, whirlwinds. And if you're asking about summer, clouds and rain.
	You are destined to suffer greatly for a year to come, before the evil passes out of your life.
	Great deceit is manifest, either in the choosing of your birthday, or in the friend of whom you inquire. You would do well to be exceedingly watchful.

	The planets are obscured right now. Try this oracle again, before you leave the house—say, an hour from now.
	A great part of the promise will be kept, and what's more, something not promised shall be bestowed also.
	Taurus the Bull and Venus the planet are allotted to you in your fate. But other stars foretell a life full of changes—now elevated, now depressed, and then a happy change.
	There are perils in your first five years of life. The years from age 14 to 21, and your 25th year all look doubtful as well. In your 35th year of life, Fate is also silent concerning you and your welfare.
	There will be an important change for the better in four days. But if the sick person is not careful, they could suffer a relapse.

E

	The sick person is in jeopardy, but will escape serious consequence. The third and seventh days of their affliction will be critical. The fifteenth day of their affliction will decide the matter.
	If you inquire of a thief, he has three names. The principal name begins with a C. If you ask of a lover, it is E, and the name is a short one.
	The stars beam joyfully on your request. It is your lot to succeed before fifty-eight have elapsed; therefore, be joyful.
	Every seventh year of your life, the planets are untoward, and cross your fate. But you will enjoy a full-store of this world's wealth hereafter.
	Fortune and a full-share of happiness will be yours. But you will have many enemies.
	Both will rue the woeful aspects under which they fight. Yet the lighter is the more-skillful fighter. Fate will vanquish the shorter of the two.
	Your desires are over-elated, and overly-enthusiastic. Don't be too trusting, for the stars are full of flattery at this time.
	You will prosper greatly by dealing in drugs and chemicals, and also medicines invented by those south of where you live. By degrees, you will amass a substantial amount of wealth in life, but it will be a gradual prosperity.
	Three times has the ship been in danger, and one more danger is near her; yet the stars promise deliverance.
	Two years of unsettledness, during which you will roam and wander. You will weep, woo, and marry. But beware of the third summer hence.
	Slow and tedious omens proclaim themselves to be the shadows of your footsteps. Go not on the ocean.
	Several changes will befall you One month from now, you will be surprised and gladdened. The year will bring an increase of cares, yet it will be a gainful one, too.
	Travel not far from the land or state of your birth. The stars indicate evils and perplexities. Certainly, avoid going northward

	It is foretold you will be a winner many times. And if you are serious when you consult the stars, then play boldly, for Fortune is on your side.
	Do you ask this? Then the stars presage many and bitter opponents set against you. But your own star will, in the end, be the victor.
	The friend is reclining on a couch in peaceful ease, and is now blessed with many approvals of the goddess of fortune.
	Three of your family will shine like stars in their day and generation; one will be very studious and learned.
	After rejecting a whole host of admirers, she will marry one who will be a light unto her feet and a lamp unto her path. This suitor is now not far-off into her future.
	Your fortune is fickle-enough as it is, but an opponent you don't even know yet will much vex you. By all means, change your present measures, if you feel motivated to do so.
	Part of the stolen items will be recovered, if they have been stolen. If the missing item(s) have been lost or mislaid, search in the bedrooms.
	You will be woefully-outwitted by the flirtations and caprices of women before you wed.
	Friday is the day that you will most repent-of in your life. Monday is the day of the week on which you must be the most-careful. The 29th of September will prove to be your brightest day every year.
	The stars near you are harmonious and good. Fortune is in your favor in great measure.
	In the winter, the ground will be bound with frost and inclemencies. In other parts of the year, things should be more pleasant.
	Before prosperity arrives, some evil is likely to happen. There is a great and remarkable bearing of the planets hereafter.
	As true as you are yourself. But in either three months or three years time, a difference will arise between you both.
	Change both your residence and occupation within three month's time, and head in a southerly direction. There are signs of a great alteration in your future, and it is not far-off.
	The portents at this time speak of fulfillment; unless, indeed, you are sick at the time you ask this question.
	The Sun is your planetary genius. Your nativity foretells many great exploits. Be ambitious to excel among all those around you.
	Several accidents will befall you: one by fire, one by the fury of a horse, a dog, or an ox, and twice you will be in peril at the hands of men.

F

	At times, you are fated to be beset with perils, but there is no fear of the sudden termination of life.
	Recovery will be delayed, but the aid of a new and skillful physician will preserve life.

	V or W is the initial of the name of your unknown partner in marriage. If you are sincere, then the truth is, you speak the name often.
	Three or four hindrances are to come. But if the desire be for wealth, business, or friends, or indeed anything but love, then it is fated to be fulfilled.
	You are born to inherit wealth in your old age. Specifically, after you have attained fifty-five years of age.
	The planet Mercury and the Moon indicate that you will be a lucky adventurer.
	The darker in hue will beat the one of fairer hue, but both will be severely hurt, and one of them, dangerously-so.
	Mars foreshadows deceit, and there is doubt for three months hence, just how far the matter will succeed.
	Seek employment with, or an office in, the government. There, you will find a great chance of success. But avoid speculations and speculative ventures, for there you will lose.
	The beginning of the voyage will be unsuccessful, the middle part of the voyage, more prosperous. But the end of the voyage portends dangers, bad weather and storms.
	A blow or wound to the head; the death of a relation; a sickness in your family; three moves of residence; one tedious journey; a legacy; and a noble friend.
	Begin the voyage on a fortunate day, and it will be safe. For travelling on land, consult this oracle again before setting-out, and note well the beginning of the trip, for it is a harbinger.
	There doubtless is; but there are planetary signs above you now which will cause you to wish there had been none.
	By travelling eastward, you will gain, by going westward, you will lose. You will travel both ways, but avoid hilly and mountainous countries if you wish to succeed.
	If the arts of cheating not be practiced, you will win. But at first, you will lose a trifle.
	It is foretold by Venue that ladies will generally be your friends. But you had better mistrust some of them now, for they are flattering you.
	The fate of the absent one is diversified, and much subject to the fickle frowns of Fortune. You will soon have news from this person.
	Some of your offspring are born to be rich, some to attain renown at home, and some to roam across foreign lands. They are all fortunate.
	To marry one bred to the sea, or a rover by profession; a person fair-haired, comely, and well-favored; a person born to enrich her in money and goods.
	Three times, your evil star will prevail. But the fourth time, you will obtain the mastery.
	If lost, they are buried in the earth, or fallen into some foul place. If stolen, you will never recover them, but the thief will be punished within a year's time for another crime.
	You will woo and wed one from a distant part of the country, possibly one of foreign origin. She will be beautiful and respected as a lady of worth.

	A deathly sickness, or something close to it, will seize you on a Friday. Wednesday is your fortunate day of the week. The ninth day after the new moon will be a day of dread for you. The first day of each month is favorable for you.
	Ill-reports and slanders are foretold by the stars. Be on your guard, that you pursue nothing unworthy on that day.
	If you ask of a day, it will be wet and rainy. If of a season of the year, look for it to be very tempestuous.
	Avoid all useless speculations, and your prospects will improve. There are still some grounds for alarm, though.
	The friend may be esteemed as true.
	Give your present position a fair and candid trial before you give notice of your intention to depart. There is sometimes 'luck in leisure.' Better signs are approaching, and they are not far off.
	If you have not asked for an impossibility, it will be done. But there will be, and is, a slight difficulty in the way.
	You were born under the Moon, and Cancer is your constellation. Your fate will often be a perplexing one. Fortune will be fickle in your life.

G

	Libra is your ruling constellation, and Venus is your planet. Your fate tells of the hazards of chance: a rise much beyond your present expectations, a pompous name, and the gifts of wealth are all indicated.
	If your forty-second year of life be passed without peril, it will be your lot to enjoy a length of years, beyond that which your family generally enjoys.
	The most-critical time is past. The harbingers of health await destiny.
	If you wish to know whom you will wed, O commences the name, and it is a long and seldom-spoken name. If the question concerns a theft, then the letter you seek is E.
	If of gold, silver, or the gifts of fortune, you shall. If of love or marriage, you shall not—and if you do, you will sorely repent it.
	In your middle age, Fortune will favor you with Her choicest boons. But beware of your thirty-third and forty-first years of life, for evil stars proclaim these years of your life, disastrous.
	Your fate is as uncertain as the wind, and but little of the past has been good to you. Yet yours is a fortunate planet, and better days await you a year hence.
	The more-cowardly of the two will win the fight, for when the stars rule, 'the battle is not always to the strong, nor the race to the swift.'
	If the adventure relates to war, then the signs are propitious. It is the opposite situation in love matters. If it relates to the golden idol, namely money, then it is good, yes, and flattering.
	You will gain by mysterious and secret medicines and arts, by the writings of others, by learning difficult things, and by contending against your present notions.

	It would be well for the bold mariner who steers this barque to be careful of the shoals and quicksands which lie in his course.
	During that period, you will be twice elevated, thrice cast-down, once near-imprisonment, an attendee at a scene of sorrow, a guest at a marriage feast, and will gain much money.
	If you believe in what you seek, then your fate is woeful. You should avoid travelling.
	Your benevolent planet is fast-leaving evil aspects, which have seemingly been against you lately.
	In travel, you are unlucky. But if you will travel, go northward, and keep near dry, level lands. Live near a factory or a rich mansion.
	At play, you will win little, so avoid it. The stars promise nothing good or gainful in that way.
	Your circle of acquaintances is large, and will grow still larger; but steadfast friends are few for you.
	The absent friend is about to return. You'll soon hear good news from this person. There are in moderately-good circumstances.
	Twice, says the Moon, you will be fortunate: once, four years hence, and once, eight years hence.
	She will not marry anyone whom she has already loved, but one who is now a stranger; a fair-haired, slender person. She is destined for marital happiness with this unknown individual.
	Villainy and treachery are visible in the future. Take heed, or assuredly you will be wronged.
	Part of it you will recover—unless, perchance, the thief has taken it across running water, which is not likely. If anything is lost, search around you.
	Your fate in marriage, although wholesome and pleasing, will have a little of both the bitter and the sweet.
	Saturday is the most-eventful day of your life. And on the 5th of November, some fateful year, there will occur a change in your destiny for the better—or for the worse.
	It may prove rather the reverse; for while you deem yourself secure, a turmoil may yet happen. If possible, it would be best to shun this evil.
	If in the spring, the air will be strong and cold. If in the winter, there will be thick fogs. If you ask about the summer, rain is at-hand. If in the autumn, there will be fair weather.
	The future promises much. Therefore, patiently bear the brief season of poverty to which Fate has currently destined you.
	As are gall and honey, so is his friendship; now faithful, then doubting, then friendly again. You yourself waver in regard to him
	You had better move, and as soon as you can. There are signs of ill-luck around your current abode.
	Don't confide too much. Something is doubtful in the questions which you ask. If a fair-featured girl has promised you something, you'll regret the fulfillment of that promise.

H

	There is now insincerity in the stars. Seek your fortune in either one day or one week from now; you are not sufficiently-earnest right now.
	Mercury is your birth planet and Taurus is your constellation. These two foretell of riches and honors.
	The planets speak fairly for the future, no matter how delicate the asker's health. If past age thirty-seven, he or she will see sixty-two years, and more.
	At first, a relapse is foretold. Then better health, then a worse and more-critical period. The physician and patient disagree. A change is beneficial.
	If you ask about a thief, the name starts with a Y or a Z, and is several syllables long. If you ask about love, the name begins with an A.
	You will be close to giving up three different times; but Fortune will favor you in the end.
	You will be well-off in early youth, and in old age, will attain many tokens of wealth. The period of life from thirty to thirty-five is full of remarkable events for you.
	If male, ambition will at times possess your whole soul. If a female, love is your foible. But either will be fortunate after their thirty-eighth year of life.
	The taller of the two will overcome his adversary, if they fight. But here, there are signs of frustration, as if suddenly thrown-up, which may change the whole matter.
	Delay it until twenty-seven days have passed; then, you are sure of success.
	Seek your fortune by dealing in portable articles, or in the pursuit of law or religion, or by affairs in which rich people will aid you.
	Some mischance attends the master of the ship. Rough weather has been experienced. The end of the voyage is doubtful.
	An unexpected change in your pursuits; three times to witness the death of those near and dear to you; if married, the birth (or arrival) of children; and if single and of the proper age, marriage.
	Renounce all fear and feelings of alarm. Jupiter, a fortunate planet, befriends you.
	There will be one before forty-four days have elapsed and two others before the year ends. Even now, there is something of import happening in your destiny.
	To the east, if you mean to cross the ocean. If you mean to travel inland, to the south-west. Dwell near theatres or concert halls.
	Mercury indicates that many persons intend to cheat you if they can. This is not a fortunate omen.
	Your fate contains many crosses to bear in it, and there are many enemies at hand, so it is therefore difficult to answer the question correctly.
	Changeable as the Moon. Your friend has lately felt his destiny at work.

	You will have a daughter, and she will wed highly, or beyond her sphere in life. Also, with few exceptions, you will have your wishes satisfied in regard to what you want to know.
	To marry one in public life, whom she has either seen or now knows. Someone who will also be a suitable spouse for her, and will raise her in life.
	By attention at the hands of justice, you may win, although your opponent is more powerful in the law than yourself.
	If you have lost or mislaid it, seek in places high above-ground. If it was stolen, a female was the thief, and you will not recover it.
	A painful and laborious life in the married state is foretold for you. But if you marry a second time, the second marriage will be less-severe and painful than the first.
	Thursday is your fortunate day. The sixteenth day of the month will prove to be of the greatest consequence to your life and actions.
	A portion of both good and evil is foreshadowed by the planets. With the right care, you may be able to remedy a part of this evil.
	If in summer, rain, If in autumn, wind. If in winter, severe cold. If in spring, hail and frost. If it's of a particular day you inquire, the weather will be pleasant and serene.
	Discord and contention are foreshadowed. But there will, four months hence, be a change from bad fortune to good fortune—and the change will be a powerful one.
	When you count on your friends, hypocrisy and deceit will frequently be your lot.
	Move your place of residence quickly. There are signs of gain by so-doing, and in this case, delays are dangerous.

I

	While you are seeking, your mind changes. Try this oracle again tomorrow night. You are not destined to know the first time.
	If the promise is in regard to love, it will. If it concerns money or friendship, it is doubtful.
	Jupiter is the heavenly body which rules you. Your fate will lead you to mighty-doings before your forty-fifth year, and you will achieve much—yet enjoy, but little.
	You will reach a reasonable age, but you are prone to diseases of the breast and stomach, and will have a weak constitution over-all. Guard your health carefully.
	There is considerable danger. Let the physician be warned—there is something wrong in his treatment of the patient.
	The first initial of your future spouse, if such information you seek, is T. If you are inquiring of a thief, it is L, and is a frequently-spoken name.
	There will first happen, three crosses for you to bear. The fourth effort will bring you success. But know that there will be, and indeed currently is, a bitter enemy in your way.
	Seven years hence will be the best part of your life. Your past history has been vexatious and often-crossed by Fortune's frowns, but seven years hence, She will smile upon you.

	Inconstancy and care will embitter a great part of your life. But you will, after your fortieth year, possess much gold and silver as a compensation of sorts
	A surprise awaits you in reference to the combatants—for he who is expected to lose the day will win.
	Only partly-so. There are difficulties in the way, if the matter is entrusted to others, although your star claims the mastery in the situation.
	You should choose some public occupation, wherein there is an appeal to the masses. Otherwise, you should be in the business of selling wine, liquors, syrups, etc.
	At this very moment, the ship is in great danger.
	A joyful scene; three merry adventures; a powerful friend; marriage, if single and of proper age; if married, the birth or arrival of children; a long voyage; and a year of bad luck.
	This planet foretells of storms and shipwrecks, piracies and robberies. Don't begin your journey this month. You risk misfortune if you do.
	There is. You will taste of the joy of love and wedlock. The stars show other flattering changes, but also some which are more flattering than real.
	You should not travel for three years. Then, go toward the south, and reside in cities, near merchandise warehouses.
	One described by this planet as a dark man will dodge your steps. And a pale, red-haired man will cheat you. You are not fortunate at games of chance.
	Inconstant and changeable is your fate in this matter. You know this by your own experience.
	Fortunate, probably. But a great change approaches—it is even at the door. Mark well what will happen.
	You will have a troublesome family, who will require all your exertions to care for. One of your progeny, however, will be Fortune's favorite.
	She will wed a witty and discreet person, one who will be both her joy and her plague. One whom she will love, but at times, quarrel with. He will be highly-respectable. Perhaps a fair-complexioned man.
	The signs in your life give you a great advantage over your opponent. But there are omens of deceit in written documents, oaths, and promises, so be watchful for this.
	Search near fireplaces for anything, if you have mislaid it. If it is small, check in jars or other shut-up receptacles. But if it is stolen, you will never recover it.
	You will marry one whom you love, and who will also be discreet, but possessing qualities which will cause you to have less freedom than you now enjoy.
	On a Wednesday will occur the most remarkable event of your life, and on Wednesdays, you will be fortunate. But your unfortunate day of the week is Thursday. You will some day have good cause to remember one of these two days.
	If you ask of money, it will. Of a marriage or intrigue or pleasure of any kind, it will not. If you ask about anything else, it is dubious.
	If you ask of a particular day, it will be contrary to your wishes, whatever your wishes may be. The same applies if you are inquiring of any particular season of the year.

	A great change will come in three years. Then another and better change will happen after that.
	Don't trust every friend. But if you are sincere when you ask, then yes, your wishes are fulfilled.

J

	The friend of whom you inquire is as you wish them to be now. But this does not necessarily refer to the future, which may be different. Be careful a year hence.
	Had you not better re-consider? There will assuredly be a change, if you remain.
	There are signs of some deceit and delay.
	Mars is your planet and Cancer, your constellation. Your fate is thus: you will be one with whom Fortune will play many frolicsome games. You will be rich, and yet poor. You will be honorable in reputation, and yet void of real friends.
	In your twenty-second, thirty-fifth, forty-first, and forty-second years of life, expect maladies. In the earlier part of your life, expect accidents. But in spite of all this, there is a fair chance that a long life lies before you.
	The condition of the sick person is dangerous for three days hence. The third week of their illness decides the whole matter.
	If you ask of a lover, the initial is R, and the name is one of frequent occurrence. If you inquire of any other unknown party, it is D, and is a quaint and strange name.
	Seven days hence, something will happen which will materially affect your wishes.
	After your fortieth year, your planet's beneficial influence wanes. Therefore, make the best of Her happy and favorable gifts before then, so that you may not die in obscurity.
	Your destiny will be as inconstant as the elements. A fate now steeped in sorrow, then fraught with joy. Now rich, now depressed, but never actually poor. Such is your lot in life.
	Three times, will a peacemaker try to part them. But if they fight, the shorter one wins.
	The planets are on your side, and the omens are flattering. If your adventure is about anything but love, you will succeed wonderfully.
	In none, on your own account. Seek rather some place, office, or inferior situation. You may gain by churches, vaults, graves, and dreary mansions.
	Even while the vessel sails through the foaming billows, a mighty star tells you that she is safe.
	If married, a son or daughter. If single, marriage. Additionally: two funerals; a narrow escape; a false friend; an honest advisor; and six months of very good fortune.
	All things go contrary to you in this respect. By land, perils will attend your steps. By water, there will be cause for sudden alarm. Therefore, be careful.

	Take advantage of Fortune when she offers, but also be on your guard, and there will be cause for rejoicing. But some impudence may mar the positives in the situation.
	To the east, if you travel by land. To the south, if you travel by water. But you are not lucky in travelling for a period of seven seasons; that is a year and nine months.
	One will face you who will cheat at the game, and lure you into loss. Be cautious, for evil omens are now around you. Escape them, if you can.
	This foretells three friends: one tall and dark-featured; one fair-featured and near you, and one female. But a private enemy is, at this very moment, plotting against you.
	This person is in danger from enemies, and is now subject to trouble in both body and mind, but they will escape them.
	Some of your family will be born to power and command, while some will be more unfortunate, but none are destined to any particular calamity, though they will be subject to cares.
	To marry one who is both tall and handsome. This person comes from a distant place, and is a fortunate person.
	There are three opponents in this case, one of whom you least-expect. A delay will arise to vex you, but be of good cheer.
	Things lost are totally-so, and will never be recovered. Stolen things you may hear-of, and may possibly recover.
	To marry a dark female, with dark eyes and hair, one born at a remote distance from you. You and she will live together very happily for a long time, and she will also bring you money.
	Thursday is the day of greatest note. Sunday is the worst day, and Friday is the best. The fifth day of the Moon's age, you will have cause to remember after the age of twenty-two.
	It may, possibly. There are some signs which are favorable, and other signs which are unfavorable.
	If you inquire about a particular day, the weather will be pleasant. If you inquire of any month or season of the year, the omens are dubious, and can give no answer.
	The mysterious stars assuredly bespeak better fortune for you than you have heretofore enjoyed. Be light-hearted and joyful, for things will work out well in two years. Even in one year, things will become better.

K

	Three times, there will be evil changes. Then there will pass seven weeks with no change. After that, there is hope.
	The signs are variable. Some are better than others. But the result of your wishes is far from promising.
	You cannot move at the present time. Some time, say, three months, must pass before you will have the requisite conditions and measures in place which are needed to carry-out the move. But the omens promise fairly-enough.
	After several secret anxieties, and after numerous disappointments, it will.
	Your life is diversified. Saturn rules it. You will be enriched, however, by the labors of others.

	There are signs of a weak constitution visible, but the life-giving planet signals a better prospect of reaching a respectable age.
	A speedy relapse, but in a month's time, all signs of sickness will be gone.
	If you seek the name of a lover, or one whom you would marry, it is I or E, and is a long name, seldom-spoken, but easily sounded-out. If you inquire of a thief, it is V or W.
	There are still a few fortunate signs left to you, one of which says that you shall.
	Ill-luck reigns from age twenty-two to twenty-five. Better luck, from age twenty-eight to thirty. Evil luck, from age thirty-two to forty. And afterwards, the planets promise good fortune.
	Your life began in trouble, and even until your middle age, fate will cross and gainsay your endeavors. But, after all that, riches and dignities will be your lot.
	It is to be doubted whether a battle will take place. If it should, the weaker will win.
	The planets imply a fate most-perplexing. The adventure, therefore, will happen accordingly.
	By bargaining and selling in goods used by the rich. And if not that, follow in the footsteps of some powerful person. You are fortunate in life.
	In the midst of a deep sea, a storm will arise that will astound the hearts of the boldest seamen.
	Love, marriage, friendship. Three noted events in anyone's life. Moreover, you will move four times, travel twice, once suffer fire-damage, lose a relative, be elevated and brought-down, and finally, have reason to hail your good fortune.
	Take heed that you are not robbed. Keep a close eye on your purse or wallet, and keep an eye on your associates. The signs are mixed and somewhat dangerous.
	There will be a change within twenty-nine days, two more changes in fifty-eight days, and a still-greater alteration a month after that.
	You had better reside near water, by a creek, river, bay, or the sea. In travelling and moving will a great part of your life be spent.
	Even in winning, there are signs of care and trouble. There may be disappointment and sorrow as well.
	You are to have many private enemies in life, and but few real, visible friends—therefore, cherish them.
	Of late, trouble was visible, but now the star of this person's fate is better-positioned.
	Twice, the Goddess Fortune will visit your dwelling. Each time, one of your offspring will experience Her goodness. The signs are certain.
	To be terribly mortified, vexed, and crossed in romance is your lot in life. But you will afterwards marry, of that you may rest-assured.
	Petty jarrings and troubles will arise in the affair, and possibly a false-witness. Some of the planets show malignity, tediousness and irritability.

	If things have been lost, seen near a door, on a shelf, raised above the ground, or where there is but little light. Also near iron. If a theft has occurred, the perpetrator is a young person with small legs, a fast gait, and is full of talk and business; not a common thief.
	You will marry a prudent, sensible person, who is fair-featured and grey-eyed. This person will have been born near you, and you will meet them by chance. They have rich relatives who will despise or condemn you.
	The longest day of the year, June 21st or 22nd, will be one of the most-noted days in your fate. But Monday is always a prosperous day for you, in either your adventures, business or designs.
	Several of the signs speak affirmatively—probably in love or friendship. There is something foreshadowed which is very prosperous.
	Do you inquire about tomorrow or a certain near-at-hand day? If so, it will be cloudy and rainy. If you ask about a season of the year, the air will be foul, cloudy and unwholesome.

L

	In winter, clouds and rain are forecast. In summer, fine weather, but stormy at intervals. In autumn, thunder. In spring, clouds, thunder and hail.
	Next month changes it, but it may not be for any good. But hereafter, it will be so.
	You have slanderers and backbiters, and the planets say these are not far from you. But you have at least one faithful friend, which is a rarity.
	If you wish to move, do it quickly. It is evident by the signs that any delays will only foment strife and dissension.
	Even while you inquire, the promise may be broken or put-off, so that will vex you.
	Venus is your ruling planet and Virgo is your constellation. Your fate in life will cause you to travel, to cross distant lands, to see strange kingdoms, and to return to your native country in prosperity.
	There are many signs of weakness and debility. Health is the surest guide to a long life. But it would be too-flattering to speak to you of the duration of your existence.
	The sick person will be in extreme danger, and some unorthodox treatment may effect a perfect cure.
	If you ask about a lover, E is the letter, and it is a short name. If it is of a thief you inquire, there are two concerned. One's initial is D, the other's is I, and both names are uncouth.
	The planets, for a little season, are opposed to you, and perverse omens will thwart you. But don't despair, for all will be as you wish thereafter.
	If you are a female who asks, then between the ages of nineteen and twenty-two, life will be perverse. If you are a male who is asking, then imprisonment may be near, but after age thirty-five will be the best season of your life—but beware of age thirty-nine, for it will be a dangerous year for you.

	Fortune's gifts, without your seeking, will raise you to wealth, which you will afterwards lose.
	They will not fight. Were they to do so, death would claim them both.
	On the third day from this, the planets indicate a variety, perhaps a change of intentions. Within twenty-nine days, it will be decided.
	In laborious trades, where others will be employed. Also, in the handicrafts of life and the useful arts. But there are signs of a humble share in life for many years first.
	It was in a lucky hour that the ship sailed; for the planet Venus bestows pleasure and a safe return after a certain delay.
	A voyage; two accidents—one by fire, one by the fall of a ponderous weight; a death which will vex you; five journeys; a change of friends; two years of good fortune; and several surprises.
	It is, but seek not for gain. The signs are those of safety, but not profit, nor of enriching yourself by any procedure of any kind.
	Evil fortune will manifest in twenty-nine days. But there is to be a great change before the year is out, and either travel or a move is in store.
	Due-east, if you wish for gain. Due north if for health. But generally, choose seaport towns when you can.
	Failures, falsehoods, and cheatings are too obviously in the stars to speak of gain; therefore, beware!
	Enemies are quite manifest, but there is a powerful friend approaching, so some relief may be in sight.
	Lately, he or she was in grief and trouble. But the signs have changed and better omens are visible
	One child will be born to vex you. Two will thrive in the world. But generally speaking, you will not be fortunate with your family.
	To marry one, after manifold crosses and perplexities have been borne—and even then, there will be a want of money.
	There are indicators of bribery in this sign, as well as much falsehood, which will materially affect your interests. Be as much on your guard as you can.
	This will never be found, if lost. If stolen, part of it may hereafter be seen, but never recovered. That was a cunning thief, and all hopes of restitution are futile.
	You will marry a virtuous lady, but your friend will oppose the match. You have seen and conversed with her already.
	Wednesday, is your most-noted day for good fortune, Saturday, your most-noted day for evil fortune, and the seventeenth day of the month will be a day of great-note for you.
	There are three or four stars which augur favorably, but a spiteful foe may come close with intent to hinder any good fortune in this respect. Yet in the end, the spiteful foe will not succeed, and it will be successful.

M

	Don't be depressed, for the good stars above proclaim a run of good fortune. It is up to you to seize the lucky moment.
	In winter, deep snow. In summer, thunder and hail. In springtime and autumn, storms. If, however, you inquire of a certain day, it will be bright and clear.
	In deep anxiety, if this is your true question. But the omens are downright joyfully earnest about the thing you most have your heart set-on.
	He is discreet and capable of firm friendship. Why, then, do you doubt his truthfulness?
	'Beware of hazardous enterprises and foolish conceits' say the stars. Show due-caution as to which direction you will proceed next.
	It will be either forgotten or not-fulfilled. The omen here is visibly dubious.
	Venus is your planet, and Libra is your constellation. Your fate is of a very peculiar kind. First, you will travel. Then you will have troubles in your home and family. Then you will enter into some public business. Through all this, you will rarely be rich in substance.
	The signs indicate peril from water and poisons, with a dangerous time of note in your thirty-fourth year of life.
	The appearances are flattering enough to present a picture of near-health. But there is still some reason for doubt, if not also a sign of coming danger.
	If you ask about an admirer, their initial is F, and it is a name of indifferent length, often spoken within earshot of you. If you ask about a thief, the letter is O. It is a long name, and not often heard in conversation.
	The planets and stars foreshadow losses, crosses, and anxious cares. In such a case, the wish is doubtful.
	The next two years will be unfortunate. But in less than four years, you will thrive greatly. After age forty-two, you will be still-more prosperous.
	Sorrow and care will, in great measure, be your lot. Manifold omens deny any large amount of wealth is destined to be yours.
	That combatant in the more-northerly position, who faces the south when the fight begins, will gain the victory.
	There are indications of trouble and care. You must beware of getting into dilemmas through want of due caution and vigilance.
	You will succeed by dealing in ornamental goods, or in buying and selling small articles, or in any ingenious line of work, such as paintings and engravings.
	There is a sign of furious storms and danger to the ship.
	Long journeys; a promotion in life, which will stir-up enemies; a year of misfortune; a dangerous sickness; a funeral; a feast or wedding; danger from a fall; once only, a fear of imprisonment; and then the indulgence of fortune.
	The planets indicate there's a danger of drowning, if you don't change your present intentions. By land also, there will be many mishaps.

	There are two changes—one for good, and one for evil. You will have an eventful year, and some part of it will prove troublesome.
	Stay all your life near the place of your birth, and don't tempt Fate and court danger by travelling.
	There are more signs of loss than of winning now, and you must take heed.
	The stars show two friends: one dark-featured, elderly, and of humble station in life, the other fair-featured and better-off than the previous-named friend. But generally, the stars show more enmity than friendship for you.
	In heavy trouble, doubtless; for the planets are now acting as workers for calamities and evil-reports, news, and cross-purposes. Letters will soon arrive.
	The planets are warning you to be more than usually circumspect with your offspring. Look carefully to their welfare and be attentive to their behavior.
	If you're female under age thirty, you'll be married three times. One spouse will be a plague to you and your friends. Another will be wealthy, but plain-featured. Still another spouse will be a beloved and esteemed character.
	A dark-featured, cross, elderly man will be the cause of you losing your suit. He is thin-faced.
	If you seek for lost things, look in pots, jars, pent-up places, vaults or cellars. If they are stolen, the thieves are not far-off.
	Do not marry early in life: if you do, Fortune will cross you in every direction. If you're a widower, you'll yet find your match in wedlock.
	Saturday is the most-fortunate day of the week for you, and you will someday die on that day. The ninth day of the month will be of great import in your life. Your birthday is an unlucky day for you; do no business on that day, for it will not turn out well for you.

N

	Thursday is the chief day of your life, both in adversity and in prosperity. If you look at your past, you will find this is so. The month of January will always be unlucky for you. Never do business on the waning moon (full to new moon), as it will always prove fatal for business.
	Not all that glitters is gold—therefore, don't be too sanguine in your expectations. The stars and planets aren't wholly in your favor.
	Fine, clear weather in summer. Mild and warm in winter. Torrents of rain in autumn. And showers in the spring. If you ask of a particular day, it will be pleasant.
	Do you know the dangers that are before you? It does not seem so. But hereafter, there is much good. You would do well to improve it.
	Your friend is as true as you could wish. But take care that you don't try their spirit over-much.
	You can't move fast-enough to seize the first of the good planetary aspects over your head, so move as soon as you find it convenient to do so.
	It is one sign of a narrow mindset to trust too little and yet, you shouldn't trust too much. There are indications of deceit, which warn you to be on your guard, but they are not overpowering.

	You were born under the planet Mars. Set your desires' sails in the direction of a good harbor, and be careful of the rocks you'll meet en route. Your fate is a remarkable one—strangely, marvelously so.
	Your disposition threatens to embitter your existence and well-nigh shorten your life. Curb this tendency, and there is yet hope.
	A relapse. Therefore, look well to the physician—it may be there have been blunders in the patient's treatment.
	If inquiring of love, the letter is L, and it's a short name. If inquiring of anyone else, U is the letter you're looking-for.
	Hope, the eternal deceiver of the human heart, will urge you on. But there are defects in the signs today. Inquire again of this oracle tomorrow.
	In the morning of your life, happy. In the noon of your life, a somber cloud appears; yet a rainbow of hope surrounds your fate for a season. Your middle age, from thirty-three to fifty-two specifically, is best.
	Why seek riches? The stars allot you many years of good fortune.
	The strife will be cruel, and one will lose their life—that one will be he whom you think will be the victor in the contest.
	You have the good planet Venus protecting you. A little caution will secure you adequate success, which will be at least equal to what you deserve.
	You are evidently under the planet Mercury, which indicates a person of talent, and of the mind. You will gain by keeping stores of books or papers, the publishing field, or by manufacturing & selling the medicines of those living in the west & south of where you are.
	The planets foretell boisterous and stormy weather, which will cause great danger—but one good star offers protection.
	Sickness & disease; three funerals; one wedding; two births; seven great changes; a gross fraud; a loss by theft; an alarm by fire; and an adventure.
	If you take all due heed, there will be safety.
	There are four changes coming. One of residence, one of friends, one of money, and one of pursuits.
	If you travel, let it be inland, and near mountains and hills. Avoid salt water. If you choose a residence, let it be in the high parts of towns or cities.
	There are indicators and signs of winning. Therefore, don't be murmuring and repining, for good fortune is before you.
	There is the sign of a bitter enemy. Take heed that you are not duped by evil deceivers.
	They are deeply in trouble, for there are signs of manifold heaviness and cares, mingled with many unlucky forebodings.
	Some of your family will become wealthy and materially affluent. Some will lord it over you, and some will go far away, but one will comfort you.
	To marry a dark-featured man, with hazel eyes and brown hair, who will be an heir to wealth.

	A friend will forsake you; an enemy will rise up suddenly; and a whole heap of cares must be passed through before better omens appear. So your suit looks troublesome right now.
	Stolen things are too far away now to be recovered. But if you ask about lost things, look in closets and drawers.
	You are doomed to many disappointments. But there are omens which promise success later, and you will enjoy the fulfillment of your wishes after a delay.

O

	You will have a great adventure in love, and a surprise in marriage, for you will be lucky therein, which is a great deal.
	Monday and Friday are your chief days of good fortune, but days when the Moon is in Taurus, then you will also prosper.
	More than likely, your inquiry is motivated by vanity. If not, it is fickle and insincere. Try once more an hour from now.
	If you ask about a particular day, it will be wet. If of any season of the year, the weather will be unpleasant, and contrary to your mind, wishes and desires.
	It may; but there is one planetary aspect which foretells something untoward at first.
	The friend is well-conditioned, and will not be easily-persuaded to relinquish the connection which is now being entertained.
	The stars proclaim good and faithful friends, which may cause you to change your intentions.
	The planets are threatening wiles and deceits. Make your own judgement, but take care that you do not ask for mountains, when even moehills are too much.
	Venus is your planet, and Libra is your constellation. Thus runs your fate: one near-imprisonment, but saved by a sudden stroke of good fortune; twice high in reputation; two downfalls; a series of evil fortunes; and once in power, but never rich.
	Something points to a peculiar destiny: to be near-death sometime between the ages of thirty-two and forty-three. If you get past that period, then you will be long-lived.
	A period of twenty-nine days brings a change.
	If you wish to know of a thief, the letter is B. If inquiring about a lover, the name starts with a D, and it's a short name.
	Beware of your actions, and look well at your desires, for there is an evil omen before you. Signs of trouble are seen dimly. Be on your guard, and be very circumspect.
	You will be rich before any great age is attained, and the stars and planets will often be on your side in a marvelous manner.
	Dissimulations, labors and cares will often beset you, as there is foreshadowed a world of difficulties. But you will, finally, overcome all enemies.

	A feminine influence is at work, which will prevent the combat, and both parties will be bound to make peace.
	Three times, the planets say, you will be thwarted in your designs, before things will be as you think and wish.
	Work in metals; gold, silver or steel. Deal in fruits or other produce of the earth. Adventuring in merchandise will enrich you.
	Furiously will the storm rage and howl; deep and dark is the abyss over which the ship is led by a single thread of fate. But she will return to port safely.
	Many surprising events, and some good ones also.
	Voyage not at all, nor travel, if you seek either health, wealth, or safety. A great danger is threatened.
	There is none of any evil import. And even if there were, a friendly star or planet protects you.
	Eastward, southward or westward, but not northward. Move to a low land, close to a town, well-populated, and near a river.
	Did you say win? Expect rather a loss first.
	There are many enemies, and but few, very few, real friends.
	Your friend is about to travel, or return from where he or she is now, and then you will know.
	There are three portents of sorrow, but there is one exceedingly happy omen. You will assuredly, in the end, be fortunate in your family.
	To marry a rich, elderly man, if she chooses. But let her beware of marrying the youthful spendthrift, to whom her thoughts and inclinations now likely bend.
	The suit will be postponed, and some doubt will arise relative to the cause of the weaker party, but you stand well now.
	Look near cellars and cisterns for lost goods. If a theft has been committed, you will have tidings of such shortly. If it is something made of gold or silver, you will never recover it—it has been melted-down entirely.

P

	Give up your quest for the stolen things, because you are overreached in the matter. If the goods in question are lost, search near fireplaces, brick walls, or near where firewood or fuel-sources are kept.
	You are too-general a lover, and besides that, fickle-minded. You will have many fair chances, but few real opportunities, to marry well.
	Friday will be that day. Also, the eleventh day of the month is destined to be an important one in your fate.

	The stars are not currently overwhelmed with good fortune for you, but something may arise imperceptibly to alter your fortune.
	If you ask about a particular day, it will be dry. But if of a season, then in summer, it will be a mixture of fair, wet & dry. In winter, it will be hazy and cold. In spring, lowering. In autumn, stormy.
	The constellation now-ascendant speaks of a change for the better in a month hence. After that change, say, three months later, comes a bitter disappointment.
	The planets tell of flattery and untruth. There is some doubt about whether it be of the person about whom you're inquiring—or another.
	Don't move now. Give your present abode another chance or trial period.
	Both the party doing the promising and the thing promised are here indicated to be fleeting.
	Mercury is your planet and Gemini your constellation. Your lot in life is to be immersed in labors and cares when young, but you will experience happiness when old.
	You will have many escapes from death in infancy, youth, and mature age, but you will survive them all.
	Recovery is certain; therefore, be you at peace.
	If you're asking about a lover or the one you'll marry, the letter is E, and it's a name longer than is ordinary. If you're asking about a thief, the letter is P, and it's a short name.
	You shall, in truth, attain what you now seek, and speedily too.
	Rough & stormy between fifteen and twenty-two; active & changeable between twenty-three and twenty-eight; flattering between twenty-nine and thirty-one: truly unlucky between thirty-two and thirty-three. Very prosperous many times afterwards, but most-especially between forty and forty-five years of age.
	The planets denote afflictions via woman, but also the joys of prosperity. Afterwards, you will again be cast-down, but you will rise a year after your fall.
	Falsehoods and bribes will pass between the parties. One will flee from the other—and that one is the one better-able to conquer.
	If you consult this oracle in earnest, then you shall have your wish.
	You will be enriched by inheritance. But you will also enrich yourself in general dealings, barterings, buying, exchanging, and in travelling.
	Three days hence, some storm which now threatens the vessel will pass away, and then there is no more danger.
	An illegitimate offspring or untimely intrigue; a short, but severe sickness; three journeys; one voyage; two changes in business; a loss of money; a huge labor; an infirmity; a persecution; a friend; a funeral; and great gains.
	In travel by land, there are no particular signs of evil but overcomeable ones. But in regard to travel by water, the signs are ominously evil, and you are advised to reconsider such plans.
	Ninety days hence, the star of your fortune will enter a less-cloudy atmosphere. This should give you hope, at least.

	Due-north. But if not in that direction, then north-west, and avoiding the south and south-east. It would be imprudent, however, for you to travel until a year's time has elapsed.
	The planets deny you a win. In fact, they threaten that you're likely to lose. Better not to gamble at all.
	One false and deceitful planet is visible. 'Enemies' is the planetary reply.
	A stroke of apparently-evil fortune shows visibly in the heavens, but the trouble will soon be no more.
	You will, an one of your offspring will be both potent and renowned.
	Look well to your intentions, lady. The course of your love life will be like that of a shallow brook, which, dashing over numerous impediments, is thwarted by a mountain. A prudent husband is your lot, however—after the trouble of getting him is past.
	It would be better for you to seek some means of agreement in this matter.

Q

	Beware of deceitful things. There is something wrong about those who will try to advise you in this matter.
	If you ask about lost things, look in low, obscure places, jars, cupboards, or vaults. If you inquire concerning a theft, then trouble yourself no more—you are doomed to be a victim.
	To marry one who will bring money; a fair-featured, elegant female. But to also have domestic bliss, discords and impediments in the way of happiness.
	Wednesday is the most-remarkable day out of the whole seven for you; and on that day, at a certain period of your life (not far-off), something will happen that will permanently fix your future destiny.
	The stars don't speak in favor of money, but they are rich in friends, love and pleasure.
	If you ask of a specific day, it will be stormy, especially if the moon is past-full. Otherwise, wet and windy in summer, cold & cloudy in autumn, frigid & frosty in winter, and in spring, just plain severe weather.
	There will be more evil yet, then a cessation. But there is a three-month wait before a beneficial change comes.
	Expect the worst and hope for the best, then draw a line between the two; even-so is the truth in this matter.
	Move quickly. In three months' time, some remarkable event, and not a good one, will happen in your current place of residence. It is of this future event that the stars forewarn you.
	Be neither lifted-up with foolish joy, nor cast-down in despair. The promise will, in-part, be fulfilled. But were it to be completely fulfilled, you would not be satisfied.
	The Sun is your planet and Leo is your constellation. Be of good cheer; you will rise to renown & great esteem among your friends & kindred. Many will envy you, but few will reach the pinnacle fate has in store for you. Gold & silver too, are to be your portion in life.

	The stars do not promise a long life. But a life well-spent is the important thing.
	The stars are threatening, no doubt about it, and the omens are cross and predictive of evil. But try whatever medicine there is which can aid the sick person.
	If you ask the identity of a lover, the letter is N. If you ask of a thief, the letter is either Y or V. In either case, it is a strange name, and seldom-spoken.
	After three heavy crosses and five cares, the desire will be partly-fulfilled. But one described by Mars—a red-haired, bigoted, wrathful man—will thwart its complete fulfillment.
	After age forty-three and before age twenty-two. And you will owe your rise in life to many mysterious circumstances.
	An ominous star overwhelms your destiny in youth and middle age. When it recedes, you will drink from the cup of joy—but first, some woe must come.
	The tall, light-haired man with the rosy visage is the victor, but a strange tumult arises first.
	The stars are not for you right now. Indeed, they are against you.
	Fortune will mostly favor you in your private life, but you will be prosperous in the useful arts and mechanics. But by all means, avoid the sea.
	Don't look too-deeply into this matter right now. The planets appear baleful, and danger is afoot.
	First, to be worse-off than you are; then, suddenly, your fortune will change. Again, a relapse. A journey; a grievous malady; the death of a relative, & also five friends or acquaintances; a wedding feast; a foe; & good fortune after all that.
	If you set-off on a lucky day, and choose the best opportunities, you will travel safely in both person and purse.
	One may happen, but it is not for a year yet. Next year, fortune favors you better than ever.
	East and eastward. Seek to reside inland, in dry and populous towns, avoiding the evils of places adjacent to water. If you travel, let it be either east or west, but in no other direction. You would do better not to travel, though.
	The planets show favorably; and yet they are so-arranged, that few will be fortunate in the game, except for cheats and swindlers.
	Three friends are certainly yours. But there is a bitter, back-biting enemy. You have, moreover, a rival. Don't be caught off-guard.
	The omens speak of safety and success.
	You are not sincere-enough to know right now in regard to your family. Ask again an hour from now.
	To marry an expert and clever person, whom you will love, and who will adore you. But beware of jealousy.

R

	The signs indicate a prosperous marriage to a tall, good-looking, brown-haired individual, one who is a great favorite with both males and females.
	You will be somewhat subject to vexation and sorrow. But there are signs of success, unless some unforeseen false witness arises against you.
	If you inquire of a thing stolen, more than one thief did this deed, and part of it will be recovered. If an item is lost, look for it in high rooms and garrets.
	There are visible, but few, signs of marriage. Be on your guard against the fair lures of Venus, whose enticements, if unlawful, are ever roses surrounded by thorns. You must be very cautious, or there will be trouble for you in this matter.
	Sunday and Friday will be the most-noted days in your life—the latter day being the most-eventful. Avoid doing business of any kind on the thirteenth day of the month.
	You will have some trouble in the matter, before the wish you harbor in regard to this day will be fulfilled.
	If you ask of a particular day, that day will be pleasant. Otherwise, there will be snow, sleet & piercing winds in winter, & unusual rains in spring. But in summer & autumn, there will usually be warmer weather than generally occurs those times.
	After a succession of particular cares and adversities, the planets denote good.
	If you ask in perfect sincerity, you may expect truth in your friend, for the stars are favorably-placed.
	Try this oracle some other time. The stars are currently denying you an answer to your question.
	The planet Saturn bears rule over this matter, and it indicates great disappointments.
	Your ruling planet is Mars and your constellation is Capricorn. Many sudden strokes of good fortune are visible—travelling and an eminent name or title being among them.
	Pursue a path of temperance and sobriety, avoid evil riotings, and don't abuse your health; then a long life will be yours.
	Whatever appearances may portend, the planets promise health.
	There are three competitors for your hand, and the initial of the winner cannot yet be found. But if you ask of a thief, the name is long, and begins with an O.
	Conspiracies will be organized. But you may.
	Counting from your birth, the first seven, the second seven, and the fifth set of seven years of life are destined to be the best in good fortune for you.
	Contentment and sorrow are to be inter-mixed in your life. But reason and virtue may guide you happily through the mazes of good and ill-fortune.
	The tallest is likely to become the victor. But the current planetary aspects seem uncertain.

	Some difficulties are near, but they aren't irrevocable disappointments. Some of the planets are also fortunate.
	The stars indicate evil and melancholy at the moment. Perhaps you're brooding over some misfortune. Therefore, you are encouraged to ask again in another day or two; now is not the right time.
	Storms and tempests are indicated, but the planets will protect the ship and save her from ruin.
	Great prejudice by means of women; a tedious journey; a sudden rise in fortune; a burial; a wedding; a feast; if married, birth; if single, marriage; a great loss; a move; and a fear of loss by fire or thieves.
	Evidently not—the signs are ominous enough.
	Work, danger, sorrow, and care are now mainly-indicated. But four months from now will bring a change for the better.
	Keep to the popular cities and towns. If you roam, return to where you now are.
	Gaming is sometimes successful. In your case, however, it brings trouble. Therefore, it is best for you to avoid it.
	One enemy—a dark-featured, bitter person. But this is balanced by a tall, fair-featured friend. Two supporters of your credit are near, and it is your lot to overcome foes.
	Something singular and remarkable, you may rest-assured, is happening even now, or is on the eve of happening, to him or her.
	The stars in heaven speak affirmatively in the matter.

S

	Your offspring will be bold and venturesome. The greater-part of them will, in the main, be fortunate in life.
	You will find it more difficult than you imagine to meet with unalloyed happiness in wedlock.
	Provided you listen to the advice of the stars, and follow the wishes of the wise, you may, perhaps, gain.
	If you ask about stolen goods, the chances are two to one that you will ever recover them. Look for lost things near ornaments, or in repositories of apparel.
	Hymen's yoke will, at times, press heavily upon you. But contentment helps you towards happiness.
	The most-remarkable day in your life will be a Monday. The fourth and fourteenth days of the month will be either a sorrowful day or an anxious day for you.
	The planets rather tend to good fortune in this matter.

	If you ask of a particular day, it will be opposed to your expectations. Otherwise, in winter, sleet & storms, in spring, hail & lightning, in summer, clouds & unhealthy weather, and in autumn, serene weather.
	There are evident signs that it will.
	It cannot be doubted that he is now. But the stars will not vouch that he will remain-so over the next three months.
	You should not move from your current residence in less than a year and six months. For the next a year and a half, remain where you are.
	If the promise was made after the full moon and before the new moon, it will.
	Venus, Mercury & Jupiter are allotted to you as the genii of your fate, and Aquarius & Pisces are your constellations. You will have fortune of a marvelous kind. There is little doubt that you will become noted and rich. But there will also be some heavy calamities.
	There is a singular malady foreshadowed in another three years. But yet, you will be long-lived.
	Doubt is implied by the stars, and one person in the house of the sick person shares this doubt. There is danger to come, but recovery is certain.
	If you're asking in regard to love or marriage, the letter is M, and it is a short name. If you're asking about a thief, the letter is R, and it is a short, uncouth name.
	If your desire is in regard to business, moving, journeys, or anything else but love, you will.
	Between the ages of thirty-two and forty-five years old, and at the beginning and the extreme-end of life.
	This may be doubted; for so-mutable is the star which relates to this question, that it is never certain.
	The darker of the two combatants will be the victor.
	Laborious enough, and requiring all your thoughtful industry.
	Wealth will come to you slowly, but trouble quickly, in any business you may be involved-in. Merchandise and the sea are best for you. Never lend either your money or your name to anyone.
	The ship has been in extreme jeopardy. Sickness, if not death, is aboard. Contrary winds, sunken rocks, and unseen impediments lay before her. But fortune still favors her, and she will end her voyage in safety.
	You will receive many a boon of fickle fortune. In spite of the favors of the gentle sex, do not steel your heart against the voice of pity. The other planetary aspects foretell a wedding, a long and perilous voyage, and numerous changes.
	To travel now, or for a year to come, would be, and is, unlucky for you
	There will be changes in fate, fortune and destiny. Moreover, you will be very unsettled for eight months to come.
	By traveling due-east, you will gain in love, friendship, and probably secure a gentle spouse. By going north, there is misfortune for you in that direction.

	Assuredly, the planets indicate prosperity, either in what you inquire about, or in something of equivalent importance.
	You have more friends. Though not long ago, it was the reverse of this.
	Your fortune, for the past two years, has been as fickle and changeable as the Moon. But your friend proposes to return shortly.

T

	At present, and for some time past, the signs have indicated a troublesome season. But this changes a week from now. Good planets will soon shine.
	A daughter, who will be both good and beautiful. A son who will rise to wisdom and eminence. And another, who will be rich in money and goods. These progeny will spring from your destiny.
	To meet with a happy and gallant admirer, who will torment her. But afterwards, she will marry richly. She will be very happy.
	Infinite trouble and ill-luck are foreshadowed in this matter. Expect the worst.
	Stolen articles will be recovered, in part. But lost goods are out of the house, and will never be found.
	Be faithful to the object of your choice, for they will be worthy. Such flatterers as you seldom have the best luck in marriage. You are more fortunate than many general admirers like you, so don't take this blessing for granted.
	Monday. But the twenty-first day of the month will be the most remarkable day of the month for you.
	Extraordinary precautions are required. The planets bear the imprint of evil.
	If you seek the fate of a day, week, or short span of time, the weather will be clear & open in general. But if you ask concerning the weather of a month or three, then the weather will be doubtful.
	In three months, it will change. And in three years, three changes for the better will take place.
	A constellation which bears rule over your destiny foretells fidelity.
	Move in a short while, and go westward.
	If a dark-featured man promised, it will not. Neither will it be fulfilled, if it concerns money matters in any way. But the signs are favorable to steadfast adherents.
	The Sun is your heavenly body, and Aries and Taurus your constellations. These foretell a long life, a great name, wealth, and happiness. But three times in your early years, you are destined to suffer to a singular peril.
	The stars show evil testimonies. Better seek what you wish to know now at another time—say, a week hence.

	A good planet promises health.
	If you ask in relation to love or wedlock, the initial is either I or J. But if it is about a thief you ask, then the letter is S—and it is a tediously-spoken name.
	Conspiracies are visible; but there are many signs of success also.
	Your friendly star looks smilingly on you between your thirtieth and fortieth years of life. But before age twenty-two, and after age forty, take heed—there will be trouble.
	It is given to you to outlive your contemporaries, outlive your relations, and die rich. But there are several toils and struggles in your life to be endured before that distant fate arrives.
	A bloodless fight, if they come to blows. Money will overcome their anger.
	It is. Three planets say so.
	You would enrich yourself by the skillful bartering of moveables, by the investment of other persons' money, and by dealing in luxury items.
	Storms will delay the vessel. Her progress is slow, and there is great danger.
	There are scenes of danger and loss. Then comes a friendly star, which aids your endeavors. After this, you will be a terror to your enemies; but there are signs of sickness. To sum it all up, the next seven years are to be the trial-years of your life.
	If you choose an auspicious hour and a safe vessel, you need have no fear, but do not go traveling on-foot or horseback.
	Twice, the stars allot a change—once good, once evil.
	To whatever part of the world you go, money will be yours.
	When engaged in play, deceivers will be near you. Don't forget this, and be cautious about what you stake.
	Several rancorous opponents are visible. But still, there is one good friend who will be near you ever.

U

	The planets are certainly fortunate.
	Acquaintances, and these numerous, are in your fate—but few real friends.
	Your friend proceeds to cheerfully fulfill the destiny allotted him or her, and is in good health.

	The planets foreshadow numerous progeny, and good fortune goes before them.
	The yoke of Hymen will be imposed upon her by the soft hands of love, and she will be contented and happy.
	This is a sign of confusion in papers or writings. Be watchful in proceeding, for there is one who holds a grudge against you.
	Search for things lost in the chambers of the mistress of the house. Stolen things are irrecoverable.
	After partaking of the bitter waters of disappointment, and drinking for a time the sweet liquor of love, you will marry a highly-accomplished and handsome lady.
	Sunday is a more remarkable day than any other day of the week for you. You will either wed on that day, or something of infinite importance will happen on that day.
	Fickle and versatile stars proclaim clearly the fear of evil and the presence of an annoyance.
	If you ask about a certain day, it will be either stormy or obscure. If of the winter season, it will be generally frosty. If of spring, fair & mild. And if of summer, the weather will be cold & heavy. No word about autumn.
	It is likely that it may.
	The planets give a woeful and evil testimony.
	It is better, within the time-span of two months, to move.
	Not if of money or of love, it is a female asking the question. But if a male inquires, the smiles of Venus are promised.
	The Sun and Mercury are your ruling planets. Your fate is thus: at times, you will be Fortune's favorite; at other times, Her football. You will roam through restless scenes, travel, and experience numerous vicissitudes.
	The signs right now cannot be depended-upon.
	A recovery is certainly near-at-hand.
	The initial is I, if you're asking about love or marriage. The initial is D, if you're asking about any other person for whatever reason.
	Possibly, you may.
	Don't be overly-thrifty. But it is not ordained for you to be rich for some years to come.
	Nothing is beyond the reach of genius, when strengthened by perseverance. Science opens for the industrious a path strewn with roses. Therefore, persevere.
	The darker of the two will be vanquished.

	Fortune delivers you a denial in this matter.
	By the exertion of your talents, or by traveling, or by supplying the wants of the rich.
	Three times, the ship will be in danger; and once, nearly-lost.
	An irregular train of events. Some flattering-enough, some the opposite. A journey by land; a change of habitation; trouble caused by a scandalous falsehood; gain by the death of another; many gifts, many crosses to bear, and many losses.
	It is both good and safe.
	There is one approaching. Take advantage of it.
	You may travel southward. But you would do better to remain in one place.

V

	At best, this aspect of your affairs is deceitful. And you would do well to remember the caution here-given: be careful in whom you confide.
	In trouble, for there are numerous planets that so-indicate. One planet assumes a particularly threatening aspect.
	In your family, fortune will run variously; neither flattering nor depressing, although at times, inclining to either direction.
	Three times will you be in love, but in scarcely one instance, will your affection be returned. Yet you will, ultimately, marry well
	A bribe or some sort of treachery is portended. And there is a doubt whether your side of the cause is being conducted well.
	A diligent search will recover the lost things, or a chief part of them. But if stolen, then the loss is certain.
	Your fate is to marry early in life, to follow your first spouse to the grave, then to again wed and win a fortune there.
	Tuesday is your most-fortunate day. The sixteenth day of every month will be notable, eventful, and singular for you—both for good and for evil events.
	By a strict attention to certain particulars, it may.
	If you ask about any season of the year, it will be dry and pleasant. If you ask concerning a particular day, it will be the opposite. Generally though, the weather will be satisfactory.
	It will be some time first, for there are omens of evil around your house.

	The planets foretell annoyance, where friendship should be rather expected. Beware of the hypocrisy and dissembling of pretended friends.
	You are controlled by a mighty power, which even now impresses itself upon your fate. Therefore, a move must be done cautiously.
	Benevolent constellations, which now reign, will ensure a fulfillment.
	The Moon's influence and the constellation Cancer prevail over your fate. You will travel far and near, roam and return, be frequently in distress, but never be overcome.
	Twice will disease attempt to destroy your constitution early-on in your life, but if you can live to age forty-two, you will be safe.
	The complaint will change.
	If you ask about a thief, the letter is F, and it's a short name. But if you're asking about love or marriage, the initial is E.
	There will be impediments, and probably a rival in the picture.
	You will suffer losses from twenty-two to twenty eight; enjoy gains from thirty to thirty-five; suffer persecutions, foes and trouble for the next seven years. But it is your lot to enjoy a happy old age.
	Contentment and sorrow are astonishingly-blended in your career. But reason and virtue will cause you to glide peacefully through them—though you will certainly feel many of Fortune's frowns
	The red-haired person will have success.
	Let not your desires be inordinate. If you ask about a money matter, it will succeed well.
	Deal in fruits and other products of the earth, or in the sale of light, portable, perishable articles.
	Storms and tempests are threatened, and the vessel's fate is doubtful.
	The death of three relations; a particular elevation by means of a very-unexpected circumstance; a journey; four changes—three evil, one good; a legacy; and a victory over enemies.
	Being now under evil planetary influences, it behooves you to show great caution in this matter.
	Something of a change is at hand; your planetary configuration will soon be very fortunate.
	For gain, westward; for honor or fame, eastward; and your whole fate turns on a certain journey, taken before another year has passed.
	There is a conspiracy against you. Be active and on the alert.

W

	Westward, avoiding the sea, but by navigable rivers and large bodies of water.
	It may. But take care hereafter; those who play at-hazard are rarely winners in the end.
	The signs are portentous of enemies and adversaries.
	For three months at least, your friend will have evil luck.
	A son, born to be rich; two others who will be skilled in the customs and arts of life, and divers lucky events are destined to be the lot of you and your family.
	The bond of wedlock will unite her to a spouse whom she will esteem, and who will make her happy.
	If it comes up in court within twenty-nine days, you will gain.
	Stolen things are not to be discovered. Lost articles, however, will be found.
	To meet with all the happiness of a sympathetic union. You should ask for no more.
	Wednesday is your best day, and Thursday the most-noted day. Saturday is the day of your evil-fortune. The first day of the new moon is also evil for you.
	The signs indicate good fortune.
	In winter, fogs and rains; in summer; moisture; in autumn, storms; and in spring, hail and frost. But if you inquire about a particular day, it will be cloudy.
	There is danger from enemies. The planets indicate a poor condition—but the passage of a month's time will bring a change.
	There is no doubt. Away with your suspicions!
	It is unsafe and even dangerous to move.
	The promise will hold, if it was made by a female. But if it was made by one of the male sex, it is uncertain.
	Venus and Mercury are your planets, and Virgo is your constellation. Vainly will many of the paths to wealth open-up to you. Your prospects are both fair, and many; but some of these prospects, you will choose not embrace.
	The planets foretell a long and useful life.
	The sick person is being improperly-treated, and more than one relapse is foreshadowed.

	If concerning love and wedlock, the letter is R. If concerning a thief, or any other person of interest, the letter is W, and it is a commonly-occurring name.
	The planets show trouble.
	The favors of Fortune will be manifest in the more-youthful years of life, and in the advanced stages of your life.
	Your fate, although it does not promise a large amount of riches, is well-enough. Be content.
	The shortest and stoutest wins the day.
	There are evident signs of misfortune. The planets are clouded and unlucky.
	By keeping a public place, by dealing with the wealthy, and by working in silver and gold, you will prosper.
	Many dangers will surround the ship; and death may scent its victims from afar.
	An intersection or cross of your fortunes, which will cause murmurings, sickness, much repining, and misfortune; a bad beginning, but a good ending; many dangers and journeys; and many changes for the better.
	The day of the week ought to be attended-to in this case. For this reason, it would be well for you to shun Friday.
	Expect very-great change. Something of considerable-import will shortly happen.

X

	Your fate is at-present unsettled, and prone to change.
	Eastward and southward, avoiding other parts of the country and globe, and dwelling near navigable rivers.
	By the exertion of a little diligence, you may win.
	The stars speak of friends.
	The absent will soon return.
	If a male, you will have a family born to achieve the heights of fortune, and to be famous in their day and generation. If a female, the stars are currently doubtful.
	As she is being so irresolute in her choice, the fear is that she will make a bad one. Let her friends choose for her, in order for her to avoid—or at least, not to deserve—her threatened fate.

	After a multitude of hopes, fears, scorn, and reproaches, you may.
	Of things stolen, only part of it may ever be heard-of. Things lost will not be found.
	Provided you know how to value your spouse, and do not lose in dissipation abroad, the advantage which you have at home, you may be happy in wedlock.
	Thursday is pointed-out as the most-remarkable day in your life.
	Whatever you intend, diligently examine it once more, and use what measures you can to ensure success.
	In winter, snow and ice; in summer, heat and clouds; in autumn, cloudy weather; in spring, serene. But if you inquire about a particular day, the weather that day will be wet.
	As sure as the stars fill the canopy of heaven this night, it will.
	Subject to fits of passion, but true.
	Good may be derived from moving your place of residence. Arrange for it to happen between the new and full moon.
	This planet speaks of some hindrance in the matter, unless it is a scientific or inventive subject.
	Venus rules you. You are destined neither to pine in want, nor to live in affluence. Your excellent parts are more likely to be of use to others, rather than to yourself.
	Moderately so, if you are sincere.
	The omens will change shortly for the better.
	If you seek the initial of your future partner, it is C. But if you seek the initial of a thief, it is E.
	Something very favorable is implied.
	After thirty-two years of age, fortune will favor you, and your old age will not be spent in poverty.
	The exalted rank of your family will hide your nothingness from the public eye. Otherwise, you will pass your life in a perpetual vicissitude of prosperity & adversity. Yet, after long journeys and troubles, you are fated to meet with peace and contentment at home.
	The dark-haired person is the victor.
	It may, perchance, produce you money.
	In any light, easy and reputable business.

	There are no-doubt indications of storms and tempests, but a safe arrival is foretold.
	A want of wealth will certainly not prevent your talents and virtues from being buried in obscurity, but remember that patience relieves sorrow. After this long period of trial-by-patience, the stars presage prosperity.
	There are few, or only small reasons for fears or alarm.

Y

	Neither travel nor move to a new residence for three weeks hence. There is an aspect of danger, loss-by-theft, and personal casualties present—especially if you leave on a trip on an inauspicious day.
	Don't be too sanguine. There is a sign of the loss of friends, troubles, and/or mischance. But these difficulties will be followed by good luck.
	If you are really sincere, traveling will always be fortunate for you. And a quarter of the globe is of little importance or interest for you.
	Envious persons are nearby, but it may be done.
	The planets indicate the friendship of a great person; but at the same time, they also denote a secret foe.
	Harassed and perplexed by fickle fortune.
	Distrust not the stars; you will.
	Venus has presented her with a magic girdle, and she will meet with success in love. Yet let her bear in mind that, with these personal attractions she possesses, she may be miserable, if prudence fails to direct her choice.
	The trial is ambiguous, and a foe will press you hard.
	Search for lost things in cupboards or closets, and behind furniture, next to walls. Stolen goods will not be recovered.
	Nothing can save you from the rocks of disappointment, with which the path of human life is interspersed.
	Wednesday is your day of weal. Friday is your day of woe. The fifteenth day of the month is the most remarkable of all.
	Perilous, if not unfortunate, it is sure to be. You must act accordingly.
	Snow and sleet in winter. Cold, even in summer. But in spring and autumn, it will be fruitful and calm.
	Many labors, snares and jeopardies must first be encountered.

	It is even as you wish.
	It is even better to change either your dwelling place, or your place of business.
	Part will. Part will not.
	Mars is your planet and Scorpio is your constellation. They indicate you will have a remarkable life, gaining a great store of goods and money, but with difficulty.
	The signs are ambiguous; try again some other time.
	Faint indeed, are the hopes of amendment.
	D, if your question is about love or friendship. If you are inquiring about a thief, the letter is L, and it is a long name.
	The stars promise success, and who shall gainsay them?
	Two-thirds of your career will be sudden, strange and unaccountable. The other part will be happy and felicitous. Fortune will try in vain to mock you.
	More troubles are to come. But all things have their limit of duration, and you will yet enjoy the goodly sunshine of success.
	The combat cannot take place this season.
	It may be, provided that it not be pursued too slowly. Delays are generally the obstacles of success.
	You will do well as a merchant or a lawyer, for either of which callings you are suitable and well-fitted.
	Safety amid perils—such is the answer of the stars.
	Many and totally-unexpected changes.

Z

	If single, married; if married, an increase of family; funerals; feasts; voyages; moves of residence; a tedious lawsuit; a year of misfortune; three years of great changes; and an office or a title.
	The signs of the stars are rather doubtful.
	Such, indeed, there is, but not yet. There is a delay, with some fear and alarm.

	Manifold crosses are predominant in this matter.
	In early life, perpetual troubles. Age opens up a prosperous scene, and gives you wealth.
	You are fortunate, but do not give all your thoughts to wealth. There are better things in this world—peace of mind, for instance.
	The short and corpulent one will win.
	Suddenly an obstacle will arise, which you must sweep away. Then, hope for success.
	You will gain in skillful trades, in dealing with the rich, in attending to the wishes of the wealthy, in traveling and voyaging, and in distant lands and by foreigners.
	Evil news may arrive before long, but there is actually little cause for alarm.

	This portends rough weather, fatal to voyages by sea. But in the present instance, fortune may preserve what you wish.
	Part of the time will be spent in trouble, part of it will be happy and joyful enough.
	This is an omen of success.
	Five months, and a change in your destiny takes place.
	Westward and southward.
	Defer all games of chance for two years. Then are unfortunate for you until then.
	If a female asks, this shows a kind and amorous friend. If a male asks, let him beware of deceitful enemies.
	Most-probably in heavy grief.
	Three times, your offspring will experience a run of good fortune.
	She will wed happily.
	Success is predicted, after toils are over.

	Stolen things are divided among the thieves, and are irrecoverable. Lost goods are hidden, and are not likely to be found.
	You have a fortunate sign. Mutual confidence lessens the yoke. Guide yourself accordingly.
	Monday, and the seventh day of the month.
	Quarreling and discord are rather to be expected.
	Expect pleasant weather.
	It will. But there is some evil first.
	Magnanimous and haughty, but true.
	The planets are too changeable for you to stay long in one place. Therefore, beware.
	Most probably, it will.
	Jupiter is your planet and you will have power over others. In fact, you will make a noise in the world, and have many attainments. Part of your life, however, will be troublesome.
	If beyond thirty-four, then you are long-lived.
	Health is promised.
	If you seek for the initial of a lover, it is S. If you seek for the initial of a thief, it is P.
	Do not desire too much, for not much is promised.
	Many are your adversities between your twentieth and thirty-third years of life.
	You are born to surprising good fortune.
	The tallest will lose.
	It may succeed. But first, you will be near to giving it up.
	By working in glass, fire, chemistry, or ingenious and skillful trades, or as a teacher of others. These are the oracles of your wealth.

b

	You will prosper in any business which it may suit you to undertake. But it would be best, however, for you to be a farmer.
	There is great danger to the ship. No certain answer can be given.
	A particular and almost-total change in your pursuits; traveling; the death of many relations; losses by theft; sickness; recovery of past losses; a rise in life; great credit; many disheartenings; and many adventures.
	This is one sign of a quick and speedy voyage.
	There are two—one is good, and one is contrary.
	Northward and northeast. You will prosper in country places, or in the suburbs of large cities or towns.
	This is a doubtful aspect of the stars. Trust it not.
	There was never a greater danger of false friends, who are, in fact, the worst of enemies.
	Afflicted, or in trouble.
	One of your lineage will become elevated, and will travel in far-distant lands.
	Her triumph over mankind is certain. Wedlock will be her greatest happiness.
	In this suit, there is a fear of loss. Perhaps by hidden treachery and bribery.
	There is an omen of bad luck in this.
	You will have a partner who will be the means of enriching you, and will prove to be your joy.
	Friday will be your worst day, and the seventeenth day of the month is also unfavorable for you.
	It seems that fortune will favor you.
	Sultry in summer, mild in winter, cold in autumn, and stormy in spring.
	It will. Better than you expect, and the waiting time is not long.
	Your friend wavers; but kindness toward you is visible yet.

	Better by far to stay where you are, than to move. Of this, you may be certain.
	Something will happen shortly, which will cause you to change your wishes.
	The Sun and Mercury rule you jointly. Your destiny is thus: to be beloved, yet hated. To be rich, yet poor. To be both the wonder and the scorn of your day. Your life will be eventful, and it will also be long.
	A long life is predicted, and good health generally.
	The planets look darkly on the situation; beware.
	B, if you ask about a lover. F or G, if you ask concerning the identity of a thief.
	There is doubt of it.
	Know that your early life is to be vexatious, your mature age unprofitable, and your middle age profitable and productive. Be wise, and seize fortune by the forelock when middle age comes.
	It is even the case; you are born fortunate.
	The fight will be fatal to neither. Nor will either combatant gain the mastery this time. A draw seems likely.
	The signs are very doubtful.

c

	If you ask in sincerity, then 'success' is the answer.
	By dealing in apparel, household furniture and land.
	The vessel will escape the storm that now surrounds her.
	Improvement in person and purse; marriage or love intrigues; and some strange adventures.
	The signs indicate slowness, but it may.
	More than one. Perhaps, more than two.
	Northward, and near mountains. Avoid the seashore.

	A cheat will confront you. But be of good cheer—a friendly star will protect you.
	You have but one tried-and-true friend. Be on the look-out for deceivers otherwise.
	Partly in either; the planets are mixed in nature, and somewhat ominous.
	The planets now favor you. Fate allots you a pleasant surprise hereafter.
	To wed one who will be both the plague and the joy of your life.
	An evil planet governs the hour. Be careful.
	If seeking lost things, look in chests. If you have lost gold or silver, give it up as gone, for you will never get it back. Other articles, you may.
	Roaming from fair to fair in your youth, you will be inconstant. But you will wed—in due season.
	Tuesday is the worst day. Wednesday is the best day.
	If for business, traveling, or quick and hasty things, it will be so.
	If you ask about a particular day, it will be rainy. If you ask concerning any particular season, it will be unwholesome and strange weather for that time of year.
	There are many changes approaching before long. When fortune favors you, take heed not to be reticent—seize the day.
	This is a sign of truth and constancy.
	Certainly, don't act hastily in this matter. Don't move your place of residence right now.
	Something will partially frustrate or cause a delay. But it may yet be fulfilled.
	Venus governs. You will first rise, then fall; recover, and die a person of money.
	Spend your life well, for it will be a long one. Live temperately and wisely.
	Unless a skilled physician is at hand, the sick person has a markedly-poor chance of recovery from their affliction.
	If the question concerns a lover or spouse, the initial is H. If concerning any other matter, then it is N.
	You may—but you must be active.

	The sacrifice of pleasure must take place in youth, and thrift shown in middle age, in order to secure wealth.
	Ill-fortune at first. But afterwards, you are most-fortunate.
	The handsomest and tallest will win. But there's a chance they may come to an agreement without fighting.

d

	This sign indicates bloodshed and treason. Defer fighting yourself, and deter others from fighting if you can.
	A few impediments may arise, but not enough to cause misfortune.
	By quick, active and ingenious trades; by books and accounts, buildings, dexterous management, and other occupations along this same theme.
	Fate both preserves and wills the safe return of the ship.
	First, to sink deep in the mire of adversity; then to have a reaction; to gain and to lose; to be elevated and esteemed; then subjected to a sudden caprice of fortune; and in the end, lucky.
	Choose as fortunate a day as you can, and all will go well, except for a slight delay.
	One approaches, but direct your eyes to another who arrives afterwards. The second is the more beneficial.
	Southward, near watery places, rivers, and the sea, or near a reservoir.
	Jupiter befriends you, and you will win; but don't play the second time.
	Mostly friends.
	A doubtful omen. He or she may be in perplexities, or in a perplexing situation.
	The stars are on your side, and favorably-placed.
	Let her avoid passionate outbursts, or she will mar her married life, which is foretold to be a moderately-happy one.
	The planets are certainly in your favor.
	Lost things are gone totally. And to seek for what has been stolen from you is folly.

	If you will woo fairly, you may, perchance, wed happily.
	Monday and Friday are your most-eventful days.
	The Sun rules, and it is auspicious.
	If in summer, uncomfortable and gloomy. If in spring, windy. If in autumn or winter, fair weather, for those seasons.
	Bad-luck doesn't last forever. Therefore, be comforted, for this will pass.
	Don't confide too much, and be mindful.
	It is better to stay a little while longer.
	The planets portend success.
	Mercury and Venue are your rulers, and Virgo is your constellation. You are born to roam through distant lands, then to return home and live happily, and to acquire money in great plenty.
	A long life is predicted, but in your fortieth year of life, the signs are perilous.
	Signs and tokens of amendment are visible.
	If you're inquiring of a future partner, the initial is either V or W. If you're inquiring about a theft, the initial you're looking for is A.
	Thwarted at first. Fortune will yet help you.
	In old age, there will be but a little evil. And there will be some evil before old age, too.
	Many times will fate run counter to you, and you will deem yourself the most-unlucky of human beings. But there will commence a happy and prosperous lot for you in two year's time, which will be lasting and permanent.
